

HELPFUL WEBSITES FOR TEACHING PRONUNCIATION

Compiled by Mary Cummins

1. This is rather academic but gives an overview of main points of phonology.
 - https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/English_phonology
2. Google Carolyn Graham....she has videos to teach you how to make chants. Here's an example:
 - <https://ca.video.search.yahoo.com/yhs/search?fr=yhs-iba-1&hsimp=yhs-1&hspart=iba&p=Carolyn+Graham#action=view&id=2&vid=e74bbc479578393f66a8b287e0b9484a>
3. This website will show you the most common errors of 25 different languages. You should let each student read the description for his/her language. Also study the languages represented in your class so you know what's most important to work on.
 - http://www.cambridge.org/us/esl/pronunciationpairs/support/likely_errors.html
4. The following 6 websites are from "Accent on English" are free samples that your students can listen to at home or together in the class if you have computer access. Many more exercises are in the book which is available as an e-book at: optimacomm.com/products.
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/th-initial-word-position/>
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/2-r-initial-word-position/>
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/i-vowel/>
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/contrasting-noun-verb-stress/>
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/contrasting-noun-verb-stress/>
 - <https://www.optimacomm.com/services/syllabic-bl/>
5. This website has conversations on a variety of topics at different levels. Your students can listen to learn more about pronunciation. Then they could pause in the conversations and copy the speaker for speaking practice.
 - <https://www.esl-lab.com/>
6. Google "ESL pronunciation" for a variety of websites that offer speaking practice.